Working in teams and using clues, they circulated throughout the first floor looking for hidden items and becoming library experts in the process.

A long, long time ago, back in the spring of 1914, they were so happy together. There was Vera Brittain, an upper class girl with ideas of her own; and her bright brother Edward; and his group of friends. Among the group was Roland Leighton; a handsome, sensitive man for whom Vera had fallen. They all had wonderful plans for the future, but then came that fateful day of August 4, 1914 when Britain declared war on Germany. All their beautiful dreams were to be shattered one after the other. All except one ...

Put in charge of his young son, Alain leaves Belgium for Antibes to live with his sister and her husband as a family. Alain's bond with Stephanie, a killer whale trainer, grows deeper after Stephanie suffers a horrible accident.

1932. Jimmy Gralton is back home in the Irish countryside after ten years of forced exile in the USA. Everyone is happy except the local priest; the village squire, and the chief of the fascists. The reason is simple: Jimmy is a socialist activist. So when the “intruder” reopens the village hall, thus enabling the villagers to gather to sing, dance, paint, study or box, they take a dim view of the whole thing. People who think and unite are difficult to manipulate, aren't they? From that moment on they will use every means possible to get rid of Jimmy and his “dangerous” hall.
Hit The Roof Band, the ultimate eclectic experience, reinvigorates old songs with a new twist. Keyboardist Matt and his brother, drummer Albert, play a bit of ragtime-stride, swing and boogie-woogie. They sample rock ‘n roll and New Orleans-style piano, which has roots steeped in boogie-woogie, gospel, classical, and funk. Fully able to express complex ideas with their music, Hit the Roof delivers a deep emotional understanding of the musical landscape. If you love good music and soul with classical underpinnings, don’t miss this interactive musical experience.

Michael Aaron Rockland is the Professor and Chair of the Department of American Studies, Rutgers University. He has won seven major teaching/lecturing awards, including the National Teaching Award in American Studies. He has lectured in some twenty-three countries around the world. A regular contributor to New Jersey Monthly magazine, Professor Rockland has also worked in television and film production, mostly for P.B.S., including scripting and acting in one movie.

New Jersey has long been the whipping boy of New York City and suffered from something of an inferiority complex. Rarely has a Saturday Night Live episode or a Woody Allen movie spared New Jersey. But, ironically, beginning in 1975, when Bruce Springsteen appeared simultaneously on the covers of both Time and Newsweek magazines and continuing with the fame “The Sopranos” brought to New Jersey, the state has been enjoying something of a renaissance and the Jersey joke has been in decline.

On a cold, crisp, late winter evening, in a town that's almost not on a map, a group of people find love, friendship and unexpected connections in the charming little community of “Almost, Maine.” This quirky comedy serves up a series of short skits that show different residents and visitors in the span of one night in a town in northern Maine that doesn't have a zip code, but latitude and longitude coordinates.

Founded in 1992, the Hudson Shakespeare Company strives to bring the classics and contemporary theater to a myriad of locations throughout New Jersey and the greater Tri-State area.
